

DISCLAIMER

No responsibility assumed

Chartered Secretaries Southern Africa and its officers and employees assume no responsibility in relation to the use of this web site or the information contained in it.

No advice provided

- On this web site the Board does not provide legal or other advice in relation to the registration or discipline of members or any other matters.
- The information contained in this web site is not intended to be advice. It is general information only.
- The information contained in this web site is not adapted to any particular person's circumstances. Therefore where the legislation requires decisions, determinations or other actions, persons need to make application in accordance with the relevant legislative authority to the appropriate body as the information cannot be relied upon to be specific enough to determine particular cases.

Professional advice recommended

The information in this web site should not be used as a substitute for advice and assistance from such bodies as education institutions in respect of accredited courses, immigration authorities in respect of citizenship or legal advice in respect of discipline issues. We strongly recommend that such advice and assistance be obtained before you take any decisions on possible actions under the legislation.

The laws, education regimes, etc, in other countries are different from those in Southern Africa. You should consult an appropriate professional body, or the Institute, if foreign requirements or qualifications may affect you.

Information not complete or comprehensive

The information in this web site may not be comprehensive or complete and may not be up to date or current. The web site may not contain information covering particular subjects or issues relevant to particular users.

No statements of the law

Unless specific provisions of legislation are quoted, Chartered Secretaries Southern Africa does not make statements of the law in relation to any matter on this web site. The comments contained in this web site about the law are summaries that may not be comprehensive or complete. If you wish to know the law, you should go to the relevant legislation.

Technical terms used

The information in this web site may include the use of terms that have technical meanings that may be different from their ordinary meanings and require specialist knowledge and expertise to understand properly and use effectively.

Information contains errors and inaccuracies

The information accessible through this web site contains significant quantities of material that has been entered manually and inevitably errors and inaccuracies occur in such a process. Although efforts are made to identify such errors and inaccuracies, the information nevertheless may contain errors and inaccuracies. In such cases the legislation has effect over the information provided on the web site.

Copyright

The materials on this site are the subject of copyright. Copyright entitles the owner to the exclusive right to copy and reproduce the materials. Copying or reproducing the materials may infringe the copyright. You are permitted only to download, display, print or reproduce the materials in unaltered form for personal, non-commercial use, research or study, or if you are a Chartered Secretary, for the purpose of giving professional advice. Requests for authorisation to use the materials contained on this site for any other purpose should be directed in writing to the Technical Advisor, Chartered Secretaries Southern Africa, P.O. Box 331, WITS, 2050.

No endorsement of other organisations or businesses

Incorporated into this web site are links to the web sites of other organisations. The links we have incorporated do not and should not be taken as implying an endorsement or approval of the content of those web sites or the activities of the organisations and businesses responsible for those web sites.